Community Health Volunteer Training
June 22–23, 2026

In line with the commitment to strengthen community-based healthcare services, we conducted our first Community Health and Wellness Training for this project on June 22–23, 2026, focusing on the capacity-building of community health volunteers. The training aimed to equip local volunteers with the knowledge and practical skills necessary to provide basic healthcare support, promote preventive health practices, and respond effectively to common health concerns within their communities.

What made this initiative even more meaningful and timely was that it was conducted just two weeks after the devastating 7.8 magnitude earthquake that struck the SOCCSKSARGEN Region. Many of the trainees themselves experienced the effects of the disaster firsthand. Some shared stories of damaged houses, fear among their families, and the struggles their communities faced in the aftermath of the earthquake. Yet despite these challenges, they willingly chose to participate in the training because they recognized the urgent need for people who are equipped and ready to serve during times of crisis and emergencies.

A total of 20 health volunteers participated in the training received a set of Paglingap Health Kit. The participants were composed of teachers, parents of VOHCS students, CMAT employees and staff, Community Servant Leaders, and volunteers from nearby communities. Their willingness to learn despite their own hardships became a powerful testimony of compassion and resilience. Having witnessed the realities and vulnerabilities within their own communities, they desired not only to recover but also to become instruments of help, healing, and hope for others.

Medical Mission: A Culminating Activity of Service

As part of the culminating activity of the training, a Medical Mission was conducted at the VOHCS school campus to serve the Malungon site and neighboring communities on June 24, 2026. Holding the mission within the school grounds made healthcare services more accessible to students, their families, and residents from nearby areas. Through this initiative, a total of 261 patients received medical consultations and healthcare assistance from the volunteer doctors and medical teams.

This mission became even more impactful through the partnership established with the Rural Health Unit (RHU) of Malungon. Through this collaboration, services were expanded beyond basic medical consultations, allowing patients to access the PhilHealth Yakap (a national social health insurance program of the Philippines created by law) Program, which provides additional healthcare assistance and support mechanisms that help lessen medical expenses and improve access to essential healthcare services for qualified patients.

The mission was attended by our 4 volunteer doctors - two from the Paglingap Medical Team, one from the Rural Health Unit (RHU) of Malungon, and one providing online consultations through the partnership with Church of Christ. Holistic care was also intentionally integrated into the mission through the ministry of 8 Pastors, including 6 Volunteer Pastors deployed by Church of Christ alongside our Area Pastors, who provided evangelization, counseling, and prayer support to patients and families. In total, 35 volunteers from Paglingap, RHU Malungon, trained health volunteers, and CCT Group staff worked together in medical services, logistics, food preparation, and community support, demonstrating compassion and unity in serving the community.

Moving forward, the initiative seeks to continuously monitor and strengthen the engagement of the trained health volunteers within their respective communities. A dedicated communication platform is established to provide ongoing support, coordination, and mentoring among the volunteers. This will not only help sustain the impact of the training but also build a growing network of community-based health servants committed to caring for others.

More than a training and medical mission, this initiative became a powerful testimony of compassion in action during a time when communities needed hope the most. It demonstrated how partnerships among ministries, local government units, healthcare workers, volunteers, and faith communities can create lasting impact in underserved communities. Through this, healthcare was brought closer to those in need, volunteers were empowered to become frontline servants in their communities, and many individuals experienced not only physical healing but also hope, encouragement, and the love of God. Indeed, this partnership became a living reflection of holistic community transformation serving communities at large through healthcare, education, and spiritual care, while continuously building stronger, healthier, and more compassionate communities for the future.
